Great Showing of Fall Merchandise!

Newest Fabrics - Best Values - Smallest Prices

This is the time when most women are busily engaged in "finding out." The best to find out is where there is most to be seen and there are more goods of every description to be found in this store than can be found anywhere else in town; in fact as much as can be found in almost any two stores. But that is only half the story—the other story is that the prices are fair, sensible and reasonable. You will find plenty examples of our supreme combination of good style and low prices when you come in.

Newest in Dress Goods and Silks Await You.

We are ready with a stock of fabrics that contain every new weave and color.

McCall Patterns—Jacket No. 2229, Skirt No. 2218
FOR STREET WEAR

Exquisite Crepe Weaves, Herringbone Weaves, Zig-Zag Novelties, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Tailor Suitings, &c.

In Silks—All the most favored autumn shades—Canard, Taupe, Smoke, &c. Dress Trimmings—A new line received this week, beautiful bands and braids.

The Millinery Section

Is Aglow With Beautiful Creations
For Fall.

We have avoided the styles of indifferent worth. Every Hat we show exploits one of the best style ideas. Big Hats predominate, though we show many unique effects in medium and small shapes. The "Director" Style, the new Mushrooms, Novel Turbans, all are represented. A visit will reveal more than columns of words, and will also show why this is Hickman's leading millinery store.

Two Negroes Sent Up.

Sam Reed, the negro who stole a suit of clothes, watch and $4 in cash from Geo. Bradberry at the ice factory last Saturday night, was caught in Union City Sunday morning. The negro is about 14 years of age, and Judge Naylor sentenced him to 7 years in the reform school. The stolen goods were recovered with the exception of the $4.

Charley Gibbs, a 12 year old negro, claiming to be from Memphis, was caught in Fulton last Wednesday with 8 quarts of booze and a big pistol in his possession. He was sentenced Monday to 9 years in the reform school.

The cases of Jim Miles and Jno. Arnold, charged with bootlegging, was continued until Oct. 19th.

In the case of Commonwealth vs. Dan Butler, who is charged with stealing a buggy and harness from O. D. Cole, was continued.

Suicide at Moscow.

J. E. Lee Morris, a prominent merchant of Moscow, committed suicide, Saturday, by drinking laudanum and carbolic acid. Morris was recently elected cashier of the Bank of Moscow, but it is said that underhanded work of enemies made it impossible for him to make bond. In addition to this, he had made a deal for the purchase of a grocery store, and at the final moment he was unable to procure the money he had made arrangements for. Brooding over his bad luck, he drank the poison, and two hours later died at the home of his brother, S. D. Morris.

He was about 40 years old, and leaves a wife, three brothers—S. D. C. B. and John Morris, and one sister, Mrs. Pirtle.

He was buried Sunday afternoon at Harmony, with Masonic honors. He was a Royal Arch Mason, and held in high esteem by all who knew him.

To Improve R. R. Park.

Now that the size of the railroad park has been nearly doubled, H. Buchanan proposes to give $100 towards the purchase of a fountain for the enclosure and the Hickman Ice & Coal Co. will furnish the water without cost. The generosity of these gentlemen should be appreciated to the extent of a contribution of another $100 by our citizens, which will get a fountain that will be "a thing of beauty and joy forever."

Of course, the railroad company will do their part by beautifying the grounds with flowers, rustic seats, walks, etc. This work will not be undertaken, however, until next Spring.

A good move.

Library About Completed.

Hickman's new $10,000 Carnegie library building, one of the prettiest in the state, is almost completed, and Contractor Spradlin will probably deliver the keys to the School Board the last of the week.

While the building is probably not as large as some had expected it to be, it is elegant in design and finish. In the matter of comfort and convenience it could hardly be surpassed, being well lighted, heated and amply large for the purpose. Adjustable book-cases, made in connection with the building, have a capacity of more than 20,000 volumes.

Recovering From Injuries.

"Uncle" Jeems Long, one of our farmer friends, of near town, who fell from a wagon two weeks ago and broke three ribs, was able to be in town Saturday, but was not as frisky as usual. Considering the severity of the accident and "Uncle" Jeems' age he is improving rapidly.

KOCH THEORY IS DISPROVED

Theory of Dr. Bartels Supported by Tuberculosis Congress.

Washington.—At the banquet given tonight by Secretary Root to the members of the Tuberculosis Congress, the chief topic of conversation among the scientists was the surprising results that have come through the inoculation of twelve adults by Dr. Ladislav De Tre, of Budapest, in an effort to controvert the reported discoveries by Dr. Koch, the famous German specialist.

Dr. Koch has insisted before the congress that bovine tuberculosis can be transmitted to human beings. To test this, the inoculation of the twelve adults, residing in the Washington tuberculosis hospital, was done almost secretly. Nothing was said about the test until tonight, when it was triumphantly announced by Dr. Tre's supporters that the tests had shown eleven of the patients suffering from human tuberculosis and one unmistakable case of bovine tuberculosis.

This absolute proof that Dr. Koch is incorrect, apparently, in his theory, has aroused great interest among the scientists, who have been accustomed to look upon Dr. Koch as the man who says the last word regarding the disease.

INCREASE IN PUBLIC DEBT

Total Liabilities of Uncle Sam Are $968,263,650.

Washington.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business September 30, 1908, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $968,263,650, which is an increase for the month of $4,377,062.

The debt is recapitulated as follows:
Interest-bearing debt . . . $ 897,253,990
Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity . . . 3,823,195
Debt bearing interest . . . 396,239,037

Total . . . $1,297,316,223
This amount, however, does not include $1,335,020,869 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury, held for their redemption.

The cash in the treasury is classified as follows:

Gold reserve	$ 150,000,000
Trust funds	1,335,020,869
General fund	160,001,849
In national bank deposits	129,925,200
In treasury of the Philippine Islands	4,687,104

Total $1,779,635,023
Against the above total there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $1,450,582,450, which leaves a cash balance on hand of $329,052,573.

Total receipts for the month were $48,320,114; total expenditures, $52,904,055.

HOW SOUTHERN CUT PAY ROLL

Discharged 12,077 Men, Reducing Expenses Million Per Month.

Atlanta, Ga.—Lincoln Green, freight traffic manager of the Southern Railway, after giving direct testimony yesterday before the Interstate Commerce Commission was cross-questioned today by O. C. Sethermer, who represents the Alabama Railroad Commission. When asked if the expenditures had been curtailed during the year 1908 Mr. Green said that they had to the extent of $1,000,000 per month and that very cruel methods had been resorted to in order to enable them to do so.

Later Mr. Green was asked outside the courtroom what he meant by "cruel methods," and he explained by stating that in June, 1907, there were over 50,000 employees in the service of the Southern Railway, and in June, 1908, there had been a reduction in the force of 12,077 employees, or approximately a reduction of 25 per cent, which represented a salary pay roll of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 annually, which formerly had been distributed in the States affected by the advanced freight rates.

TEDDY, JR., GETS A JOB.

Works Ten and a Half Hours for Wage of 83 Cents.

Thompsonville, Conn.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., became a wage earner today. He toiled ten hours and a half in the works of the Hartford Carpet Company here, along with 3,200 others. For five hours and a half he wore overalls and a jumper and bent his back over piles of dirty, smelly wool.

"Wool sorter" was his position, the lowest, hardest and most disagreeable about the works. Also the most poorly paid. Young "Teddy" earned in his whole day's work exactly 83.4 cents. He is on the company's pay roll at the fabulous salary of $5 a week.

"Tired; yes, I am," he admitted as he passed out of the gates tonight when the whistle blew at 6:15. "It caught me in the back."

"GET THE NET!"

PRESIDENT MAY TAKE STUMP

Secretary Loeb Says His Chief Has No Engagements at Present.

Washington.—No two persons seem to be able to agree whether President Roosevelt will take the stump for Judge Taft. Not even Secretary Loeb could throw any light today upon this issue. He admitted that it was possible the condition of things might demand that such a step be taken. Just now the secretary said, the president's intention is to remain in Washington.

As to Mr. Bryan's last letter the president regarded as so much in the nature of a "personal attack" upon him that there was no reason why he should answer it.

Secretary Loeb today made the statement that President Roosevelt had no intention at present of making a speaking tour in behalf of the Republican candidate for the presidency. Many invitations had been received by the president, Mr. Loeb said, but Mr. Roosevelt never has stated that he would take the stump.

When asked whether if the situation took such a turn that the president might consider that making a speaking tour would materially aid the Republican cause, the president in that event would take the stump, Mr. Loeb replied that he might or might not do so, and added that no one could tell what the future would bring forth.

BIG DAY AT TRI-STATE FAIR

Exhibits in Place and Amusements
Open—Increased Attendance.

Memphis, Tenn.—Attendance at the Tri-State Fair yesterday eclipsed any of its predecessors, and while there were thousands of people present from almost everywhere, country people predominated. It was Farmers' Union Day, officially, and many families were present from hill and mead and from farm and village.

And the crowd was not only larger, but it appeared to have more of the carnival spirit than did the crowds on other days. All the exhibit halls were beautiful to behold and the Triangle and Booth Row were alive with all sorts of things calculated to amuse the people.

The event of the forenoon, perhaps, so far as the serious side of the fair was concerned, was the parade of high grade beef and show cattle that had arrived at the fair grounds from the North the night before. There are three carloads of these cattle, and they are said to all be blue ribbon winners at the respective State fairs of Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee.

Tri-State Fair officials are highly elated that they succeeded in getting this exhibit this year. The grade and value of cattle brought here from the leading cattle producing States of the whole country, it is thought, will be an incentive to the people of the Tri-States to improve their herds, and therefore be of vast material benefit to the people of the South. The first exhibition of these cattle was made when the fair was largely attended by farmers, and many words of admiration were heard.

Monthly Coinage Statement.

Washington.—The provisional monthly statement of the stock of gold and silver coin in the United States on October 1 gives the amount as $2,244,118,551, which embraces $1,530,987,479 in gold and $714,031,072 in silver. There has been an increase in the stock of coin since December 31, 1907, of $80,335,283 in gold and $6,033,867 in silver.

Dr. Dinwiddie Has Paper.

Washington.—Dr. E. H. Dinwiddie, of the agricultural experiment station of Arkansas, today read a paper at the tuberculosis congress devoted to tuberculosis in animals, on the subject of "The Susceptibility of Cattle to the Surgical Forms of Human Tuberculosis." His conclusion, after experiments, is that there is no support for the theory which he had entertained, that certain forms of surgical tuberculosis in man, especially those involving the lymphatic glands, might possibly be of regular bovine origin.

HASKELL MAY SUE HEARST

Lawyers Preparing to File Suit in Missouri Courts.

Guthrie, Okla.—Attorneys representing Gov. C. N. Haskell in the suit which he intends to file in Missouri against W. R. Hearst, as a result of charges made against the character of the Oklahoma governor, left for Kansas City tonight. H. F. Simrall, of Liberty, Mo., who assisted the governor in drawing up the papers, is scheduled to arrive in Kansas City early tomorrow morning.

At a conference of the attorneys in the case in Kansas City tomorrow the final details of the suit will be arranged and the action will be started at once. Neither Gov. Haskell nor Mr. Simrall would make any official statement as to the nature of the suit or as to the place where it will be filed, stating that these matters would not be fully decided until after the conference.

BLAINE ELKINS SETTLES.

Actress Who Threatened Suit Gets $50 Per Week for Life.

New York.—The suit for $100,000 for breach of promise, brought last week by Louise Lonsdale, the actress, against Blaine Elkins, son of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, has been settled, and Miss Lonsdale is now on the high seas with Miss Margaret Carroll of Brooklyn, her traveling companion, bound for Paris. The settlement of the case was reported last week, but the details were not forthcoming until today, as all concerned made every possible effort to keep the matter quiet.

The terms of settlement are that Miss Lonsdale will be paid $50 a week for the remainder of her life, which is equal to a lump sum of $50,000. All her debts have been paid, and included in the settlement is the trip abroad which she is now enjoying, with all expenses paid, together with those of her traveling companion.

RYAN HONORS UNCLE REMUS

Big Financier Gives $1,000 Toward Monument Fund.

Atlanta, Ga.—Thomas F. Ryan, New York capitalist, who is now at Aix les Bains, France, has contributed $1,000 to the fund being raised for memorial to "Uncle Remus," Joel Chandler Harris. The check was accompanied by the following letter:

"To the committee in charge of the collection of funds for a memorial to Joel Chandler Harris, who has made so many little ones smile and wonder, and who has lifted, at least for a time, the burdens of care from many of us who are no longer children, and are growing old and weary: Please use this check as the majority of your committee may decide would be most pleasing to Harris, were he able to direct its use. Yours sincerely, THOS. F. RYAN."

Post Gins in Alabama.

Huntsville, Ala.—Night riders, or some persons who are represented to be night riders, have begun to post warnings on gins in the northern part of the county and over in Lincoln county. "We warn you not to gin any more cotton until further notice," is the placard that is said to have been placed on the door of the Rogers gin at New Market. The same notice has been posted on the door of the Davidson gin, in the southern part of Lincoln county.

Newspapers Raise $84,994.

Chicago.—At the Democratic national headquarters today an itemized statement was made, showing that campaign contributions from newspapers to date have reached a total of $84,994.

Harriman Ill; Stocks Lower.

New York.—Because E. H. Harriman let it be known today that his backbone has been hurting him again the stock market declined nearly two points. As soon as Wall Street discovered that Harriman was able to be at his office there was a quiet recovery. Harriman's backbone is all that stands between the stock market and a severe collapse. This bone, therefore, becomes a matter of international importance, and the medical experts have replaced the politicians as the leading authorities on the stock market.

LICENSE FOR BUT ONE SALOON.

Court of Appeals Upholds Lower Tribunal in Campbell County Case.

Frankfort, Ky.—Judge Hobson wrote an opinion of the court of appeals in a case of George R. Huber against the commonwealth, appealed from the Campbell circuit court. The judgment of the lower court is affirmed, holding that two barrooms in different buildings can not be conducted on one license.

Huber had secured license to conduct a saloon in Newport in the house in which he lived, and he rented a building across from his place of business and residence and used it for a bar and pool room. He was indicted for conducting a saloon without license and fined. The indictment was brought under Section 4198, and the court of appeals upholds the fine.

DEATH RIDES WITH AUTO PARTY

When Machine Hits Street Car—Four Were Injured.

Louisville, Ky.—Miss Katherine Horde, member of a prominent family, was almost instantly killed; Robert Payne, a young society man, was crippled, perhaps permanently, and four other persons were more or less severely bruised when an automobile collided with a street car at 28th street and Broadway.

The automobile was the property of Dr. Raymond Minor, who was out for a spin with a party of friends.

Besides the host and Miss Horde and Mr. Payne, the other guests were Miss Edna Harris and Miss Ida Edelman. They and the chauffeur also were severely bruised.

Forest Survey Completed.

Frankfort, Ky.—With the exception of three counties the government experts who have been making a survey of timber and forest lands have completed their work. Commissioner Rankin received their report and they left for Western Kentucky to make a survey of the coal fields in three counties. The report will cover the forest survey of Fleming, Robertson, Rowan, Bath, Menifee, Wolfe, Powell, Estill and Jackson counties.

Clerk's Surmise Proves Correct.

Paducah, Ky.—An infernal machine addressed to Sanford Hall, a self-confessed night rider, who until recently resided in Lyon county, but who is now living in Indiana, was discovered at the post office here. It contained enough dynamite to wreck the government building. One of the clerks jokingly remarked that it was an infernal machine. An examination followed and the surmise proved correct.

Judgment For Taxes.

Louisville, Ky.—State Revenue Agent Arthur E. Hopkins, who recently secured a $40,000 tax judgment in Frankfort against the Louisville Water Co., won a case for the tax year of 1908 here against the same company. The company was asked by Hopkins to pay taxes on $4,892,000 as no assessment was made and the board of equalization fixed the tax at that figure.

Date Set For Shooting Match.

Lexington, Ky.—The Fayette Gun club fixed October 14 as the date for the telegraphic shooting match with the Chicago Gun club. Ten men from each club will shoot at 25 birds each on their own club grounds, and as each squad of five retires from the traps the resulting score will be telegraphed to Chicago and vice versa.

No Trouble Securing Emigrants.

Frankfort, Ky.—E. J. Green, of Covington, immigration agent, writes to Commissioner of Agriculture Rankin that he is meeting with splendid success in securing emigrants for Kentucky. The men will do farm work and their wives domestic work.

Winter Campaign Planned For Troops.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The troops now on duty in this part of the state are being supplied with winter uniforms and camp equipment, and it is understood there is no intention upon the part of the military authorities to withdraw them any time soon.

Six Mountaineers Arrested.

Covington, Ky.—Deputy United States Marshal A. B. Patrick established a record when he arrested six mountaineers single-handed. The arrests were made at West Liberty, Morgan county, Ky., on charges of selling liquor illegally.

Resigns As Mine Inspector.

Frankfort, Ky.—A. J. Doss, of Central City, resigned as mine inspector for the district around Central City. He was not entirely satisfactory to the mine owners, and charges had been made against him.

Tom Cockrill, Feudist, Killed.

Louisville, Ky.—Tom Cockrill, famous Kentucky mountain feudist, of Breathitt county, while walking along the railroad tracks, was run down and killed by a train at Thirtieth and St. Xavier streets.

New Light Company.

Louisville, Ky.—Under the leadership of Charles Albus, a local druggist, the East End Electric Lighting Co. was formed here. It will supply light and power to the eastern portion of the city.

DECLINED CARNEGIE PENSION.

And Aged Professor Met Classes Until Week of His Death.

Lexington, Ky.—John Henry Neville, vice president of State university and one of the leading educators of the south for a half century, died suddenly at his home here at midnight of heart failure.

He was professor of Latin and Greek, and until a week ago continued to meet his classes. Death was entirely unexpected by his family. He was born in Christian county 50 years ago. He lived in Missouri and Illinois for several years. He was professor of Greek at Transylvania university until the State University of Kentucky was founded 25 years ago. He was offered a Carnegie pension and retirement last spring, but declined.

RECORD DOCKET

Of Moonshine Cases in Federal Court at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Ky.—All records for large criminal dockets in the federal court here will be broken when the docket of that court is called. There are 101 cases to be tried, and with two exceptions they are for selling liquor, "bootlegging" and moonshining.

The accused come from Breathitt, Lee, Owsley, Pulaski, Harlan, Pike, Whitley, Rowan, Perry and other counties in the mountains.

An excuse for selling the liquor seems to be the same with all the defendants, that they could not get work on account of the dull times, and had to sell whisky to make a living. There are a good many women among the defendants.

Valuation Increased.

Frankfort, Ky.—The state board of valuation and assessments increased the assessment of the franchise of the Adams Express Co. from $646,914, the amount fixed last year, to $965,886. The arguments of the attorneys for the express company had been made asking for a decrease in the assessment. The board decided that instead of having the amount too high they had it too low, so the assessment was increased.

Governor Reviews Troops.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Gov. Augustus E. Willson and members of his staff reviewed the First Infantry, Kentucky National Guard, at Fort Benjamin Harrison. The governor also delivered an eloquent speech, which pleased the Kentucky soldiers, who made the reservation resound with cheers for him, while the band played "My Old Kentucky Home."

Seebree Denies Charges.

Lexington, Ky.—J. C. B. Seebree, the Georgetown attorney, filed answer to the suit of Beatrice Nowlin, who prays for $1,000 damages, alleging that Mr. Seebree took advantage of her while she was alone with him in a photograph gallery in this city. Mr. Seebree enters a general denial to the allegations.

Sleep Walker Mortally Hurt.

Lexington, Ky.—While walking in her sleep Mrs. Fannie Hambrick, aged 90, an inmate of the Home of the Friendless, fell over a chair in her room and fractured her hip. She is dying in St. Joseph's hospital as a result of her injury.

Farmers Rejoicing.

Owensboro, Ky.—The drought in the Green river district has been broken. Rain has been falling in this section for 12 hours. This is the second rainfall in three months. The rain will mean thousands of dollars' gain to the farmers of Daviess county.

Caleb Powers Is Baptized.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Caleb Powers, the Kentuckian who spent eight years in a Kentucky prison in connection with the Goebel assassination case before being pardoned by Gov. Willson, was baptized in the Baptist church, Jellico.

Governor Pardons Dying Convict.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Willson pardoned Lee Clarke, a convict, dying of consumption. Clarke was convicted of manslaughter and served seven years of an eight-year term. He is a resident of Franklin county.

Dr. C. W. Whitney Succumbs.

Lexington, Ky.—Dr. John W. Whitney, 79, died in St. Joseph's hospital of heart failure. Dr. Whitney was a graduate of Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, and had practiced in Lexington 54 years. He was well known.

Killed By a Marshal.

Lexington, Ky.—In a general fight on a Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train near Louisa, Lawrence county, John Whitaker was killed by Town Marshal Fred Marcum, of Louisa, who was trying to arrest Whitaker.

Pearce Will Case.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Willson appointed W. H. Mackoy, of Covington, special judge of the Mason circuit court to try the Pearce will case contest. Judge Harbison, the regular judge, vacated the bench on motion.

Mountain Hotel Burned.

Harlan, Ky.—The Mountain hotel, of which Mrs. J. M. Blair was proprietor, was burned. Loss about $1,500, with no insurance. Most of the furniture and fixtures were saved. The house was owned by Mrs. John H. Nolan.

NO BATHTUB FOR HER.

"New-Fangled Contrivance" "Emphatically Failed to Win Approval."

The French abhorrence of the bath is a nature shared by many people, particularly one old woman up in an east Tennessee town. The town had just had a water system installed and the natives were "pining with pride" at their bathrooms and equipment where one could perform his ablutions at will without waiting and longing for Saturday night.

This old woman was an exception to the rule. She made her home with her son, and his wife, according to the mother-in-law, was "allus a hanker after somepin' newfangled."

A neighbor, who had been in to inspect the improvements in the house, remarked to the old woman:

"Well, Mrs. X—, this will be a pleasure for you—bath any time, night or day. You will certainly enjoy it—"

"That I won't," said the old woman, tartly. "I been a member of the church 50 year an' always lived honest an' upright. Gilt inter one er them tubs? Me? Why, Sary Ellen, them things ain't decent!"

HAD HEARD THEM.

Judge—Do you understand the nature of an oath?

TESTING PAINT.

Property owners should know how to prove the purity and quality of white lead, the most important paint ingredient, before paying for it. To all who write, National Lead Co., the largest manufacturers of pure white lead, send a free outfit with which to make a simple and sure test of white lead, and also a free book about paint. Their address is Woodbridge Bldg., New York City.

Apily Defined.

A woman in a town lying under the Rockies was much distressed at hearing a small clique in her town refer to themselves as the "smart set." She appealed to an ex-United States senator and asked him what he understood by the term "the smart set." He replied: "I think I can give you an inkling. In the eastern part of Colorado and the western part of Nebraska there is a large tract of land known as the 'rain belt.' It never rains there."

MY OWN FAMILY USE PE-RU-NA.

HON. GEORGE W. HONEY.
Hon. George W. Honey, National Chaplain U. V. U., ex-Chaplain Fourth Wisconsin Cavalry, ex-Treasurer State of Wisconsin, and ex-Quartermaster General State of Texas G. A. R., writes from 1700 First St., N. E., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I cannot too highly recommend your preparation for the relief of catarrhs in their various forms. Some members of my own family have used it with most gratifying results. When other remedies failed, Peruna proved most efficacious and I cheerfully certify to its curative excellence."

Mr. Fred L. Hubbard, for nine years a leading photographer of Kansas City, Mo., located at the northeast corner of 12th and Grand Aves., cheerfully gives the following testimony: "It is a proven fact that Peruna will cure catarrh and grippe, and as a tonic it has no equal. Druggists have tried to make me take something else 'just as good,' but Peruna is good enough for me."

Pe-ru-na in Tablet Form.
For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna.

Derelict Barges Visible.

Protruding above the water, on account of the present low stage of the river, opposite Hickman, may be seen the derelict barges, which were wrecked during a terrific storm in January, 1895. This is the first time since the ill fated barges sank that they have been visible; and being loaded with Pittsburgh coal, tons and tons of the fuel is now being recovered. The coal is practically as good as the day it sank.

The taking up of this coal, calls to mind that there is a veritable coal mine in the river at this point. As stated above, the disaster occurred one stormy night in January, 1895. The Steamers Tom Rens and the Mariner were enroute from Pittsburgh to points on the lower Mississippi with 22 barges of coal in tow. About sunset they would have passed Hickman had it not been for fear of an approaching storm. On this account the Rens, being ahead of the Mariner, put to land opposite town and was soon followed by the latter. Both tied up for the night at the place where the barges may now be seen. The twilight deepened into the blackest night, and with it came the storm increasing in fury until about 11 o'clock when the waves begun running over the decks of the steamers and breaking over into the barges. Pumps were kept busy until the crews finally deserted both boats, with the exception of the chief engineer and captain on the Rens, who stayed and kept her from going to pieces. The panic which followed the breaking up and sinking of the fleet would be hard to describe.

When morning dawned, the entire tow of both boats had gone down. With the barges, about 14,000 tons of Pittsburgh coal was lost, valued in the neighborhood of $60,000. Dredging boats were sent to Hickman for the purpose of raising what coal they could, which was probably a fourth, or $15,000 worth. The remainder, worth about $45,000 still lies under the water.

Should the river continue to fall, thousands of dollars worth of coal may yet be taken from the old wreck. It is costing about $3 per ton to get it out, but that is cheap.

We are told that A. A. Faris is now the owner of the sunken treasure, but like Captain Kidd, he may only have the satisfaction of knowing it is there—a pseudo legacy for his posterity.

Wm. Stoker has a curiosity, which he plowed up on his place east of town. It is a petrified Irish potato, of the Peach Blow variety, and looks now just like any other potato. Before petrification, it seems to have been cut in two by a hoe, and there is little telling how long ago that may have been.

Night Riders Wipe Out Negro Family—4 Dead, 4 Wounded

Set Fire to Dave Walker's Cabin, Killing Him, His Wife, Two Children and Wounding Four Others Seriously

A band of about 30 or 40 masked men made a raid on the home of Dave Walker, a negro living 4 miles southwest of Hickman, early Sunday morning and shot the entire family of eight members and burned their home. Three were killed instantly, five were wounded so that one died Monday and one more cannot live.

Those killed were:
Dave Walker, age 40.
Walker's wife, age 38, who died Monday.
Susan Walker, age 16.
Ransy Walker, age 2.
The wounded are:

A 12-year-old boy—shot about the shoulders—not fatal.

A 14-year-old boy—shot in abdomen and head—cannot recover.

An 18-year-old girl—shot in hand and arm—not fatal.

A 20-year-old boy—shot in foot—slight wound. He escaped and was found Monday near A. H. Leet's home—bare-footed, hatless and in his night clothes.

Those dead were all shot in the abdomen, and No. 12 shotguns seem to have been the instruments of death.

It is hard to get the real facts of the case, but it is said that Walker was a bad negro. He was recently arrested on a warrant sworn out by Joe Williams, a white man of the same neighborhood, for cursing Mrs. Williams and flourishing a gun when Mr. Williams interfered. Judge Naylor fined the negro, and he was released upon payment of same. He is said to have remarked to bystanders after the trial that he would be fixed for him next time. In other instances he was charged with being brazen and impudent.

Shortly after midnight the riders rode up to the home of Mr. Williams and called him out, telling him they were going to give the negro a thrashing and wanted him to go with them. Williams did not want to go—telling them that his wife would be left alone—and the riders told him he could stay behind and look after the horses. Three of the masked men remained with Williams and the horses and the rest of the party walked to the negro's home, arriving there about 12:30. The wounded negroes say that the night riders called to Walker to open the door. This he refused to do. Arming himself and two sons, they prepared for the attack, which was being made from the outside. When the masked men burst the door down, Walker begun shooting. The riders then opened fire on the negroes, while a part of them poured coal oil on the house and set fire to it, forcing the occupants to flee from the burning building. As they ran out, all were shot. Walker was the first to go out and was shot first. When Walker's wife appeared in the doorway she held in her arms their infant child and begged the night riders for mercy. Disregarding her pleadings the infuriated mob opened fire and a bullet pierced the body of the infant in its mother's arms. A second shot struck the mother in the abdomen and she fell, still holding the dead body of her infant.

The disturbance aroused Tom Bone, a white man residing not far away, and thinking the shots were fired for the purpose of giving a fire alarm, he started in the direction of the Walker home, but was suddenly stopped as he turned into the lane when two men grabbed his horse's rein. He was told to try going back over the same road. He was only told once—he went.

It is evident the riders took every precaution, and did their work with the greatest secrecy. They came from the direction of Lake county, and numbered from 30 to 50. Most of them wore black masks.

Walker was doubtless looking for trouble, as he was well armed and had a good supply of ammunition. He always carried considerable money with him, and it is reported that $800 was burned in the house.

County Coroner Smith held an inquest over the bodies Sunday morning, and the jury's verdict was that the negroes were shot to death by unknown persons. As soon as the last victim fell, the night riders mounted their horses and rode away, leaving no trace whatever of the identity of any member of the band. For this reason it is hardly probable that the law will take hold of the matter.

A wagon load of coffins went out of Hickman Sunday—the first thing of the kind to happen in a long time—and the dead bodies were buried Monday, in Tennessee.

A special from Frankfort, Monday, says: "Adj. Gen. Johnson said this morning that the affair at Hickman had not been brought to his attention in any way. He has a company of soldiers at Columbus, the nearest point, but will take no action until he is thoroughly familiar with the situation. There is a standing reward for the apprehension of any one guilty of confederating or banding together for the purpose of intimidation."

OASES OF CHILE'S DESERT.

They Play a Great Part in Development of Nitrate Beds.

Northern Chile, which is so largely mountain or desert, is generally regarded as a forbidding wilderness, but here may be found a number of oases, the most conspicuous of which are Pica and Matilla.

It has been found that in various parts of the great Atacama desert the earth underneath the surface layer of sand or salt is sufficiently moist to grow crops, capillary attraction spreading the water through the soil.

The rainless Atacama desert is the scene of the greatest industry of its kind in the world, yielding enormous quantities of nitrates used to enrich the fields of Europe and the United States.

The oases play a very important economic role in the industries of the region, supplying vegetables and food stuffs for the support of the workmen, alfalfa for the cattle and various fruits, and also serving as timber producers for the nitrate works, which require much fuel.

There is no part of the world where agriculture is more intensively carried on than in these green spots in the Atacama desert.—Zion's Herald.

During the year ending June, 1907, the Federal treasury deposited more than $100,000,000 in national banks. The Standard Oil bank in New York city and two principal banks dominated by J. Pierpont Morgan received about 80 per cent of those deposits, and all other banks in the United States got 20 per cent. When the small banker hears arguments from Republican sources setting forth that party's solicitude for the banker, it might be well to remember the figures herein set forth; they are from the official reports at Washington. They are exceedingly interesting to bankers, as well as to others.

The Lodge Vs. Church.

Some preachers of most all denominations are continually harping on secret orders, seeming to see in them a great enemy to the church and religion. Doubtless the majority of these men were never in a lodge room and have not the remotest idea at what they are striking. It is a great source of oratory for them that men will do things in the name of the lodge that they will not do in the name of the church. This is true but whose fault is it, the church or the lodge? Certainly not that of the lodge, for they only try to do good, and it is natural that they should want the credit therefor. Nowadays any one can join the church regardless of what he has been, if he will hold up his hand on a kind of a quit-your-meanness vow; but is it so with the lodge? (We do not refer to fraternal insurance organizations.) When a man applies for membership his record is looked into and the members have a chance to express their views as to said membership. If the applicant has no references he must get them. The church has the same right but who ever raises an objection? What man can go into a strange town and borrow money and receive other favors of value on the grounds that he is a member of the church. Yet a Mason can do it! an Odd Fellow can do it! Why is this? The answer is only too apparent: anybody can join the church and anybody can stay in it. A man can gamble, drink, swear and associate with any kind of company and yet never be questioned; a woman can dance, play cards, and gamble in their own homes for a cut glass prize or a pair of silk hose and still sing in the choir! A shoddy looking individual may go to a church service and who will notice or give him the right hand of fellowship? Nobody! Not so in the lodge.

We are for church first and the lodge afterward, but it is up to these people who are making so much fuss over the evils of the lodge to first apply their energy to making the church as a body of people more to be desired and sought after by the wayfarer than the lodge. Never destroy a partial good thing until you have something better to offer. —"W" in Methodist, Fulton, Ky.

E. H. Smith, of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission that an increase in freight rates was made necessary because of the great falling off in revenue while the railroads were unable to reduce expenditures correspondingly. Mr. Smith produced a long compilation of statistics to bear out his statements.

Stomach troubles would more quickly disappear if the idea of treating the cause, rather than the effect, would come into practice. A tiny, inside, hidden nerve, says Dr. Shoop, governs and gives strength to the stomach. A branch also goes to the Heart, and one to Kidneys. When these "inside nerves" fail, then the organs must falter. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is directed specifically to these failing nerves. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment patients say they realize a gain. Sold by all dealers.

"Shall The People Rule?"

These campaign issues underlie Mr. Bryan's proposition that this year, as heretofore, it is a question of: "Shall the people rule?"

1. Popular election of Senators.
2. Publicity of campaign contributions before election.
3. Valuation of railroad properties by the Government.
4. Lowering of the tariff.
5. Injunctions.
6. The trusts.

On No. 1 the Republican platform is silent; the Democratic favors.

On No. 2 the Republican platform is silent; the Democratic is for publicity before election.

On No. 3 the Republican platform is silent; the Democratic declares for it, besides covering every commendable point set forth in the Republican utterances.

On No. 4 the Republican platform is silent; the Democratic favors.

On No. 5 the Republican platform makes vague promise; the Democratic offers protection to labor by prevention of issuance of decrees when in other than labor disputes they would not issue.

On No. 6 the Republican platform actually proposes to legalize trusts; the Democratic to prevent private monopoly.

If the foregoing omissions be endorsed and the Republican party returned to power, these issues having been openly raised, what complaint can the people make if their rule be further prevented, as it has been in the past?

Women's Woes.

Hickman Women Are Finding Relief at last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. R. L. Graves, Shaw Road, Hickman Ky., says: "I had an attack of kidney trouble which made my back very lame and weak. Headaches were frequent, felt tired and found it difficult, some days, to finish my housework. Learning about Doan's Kidney Pills, by reading accounts of their good work in the newspapers, I went to Helm & Ellison's drug store and procured a box. They rid me of the lameness in my back, restored my strength and made it possible for me to do my housework without any inconvenience. I think I can truthfully say Doan's Kidney Pills benefitted me more than anything I ever tried."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

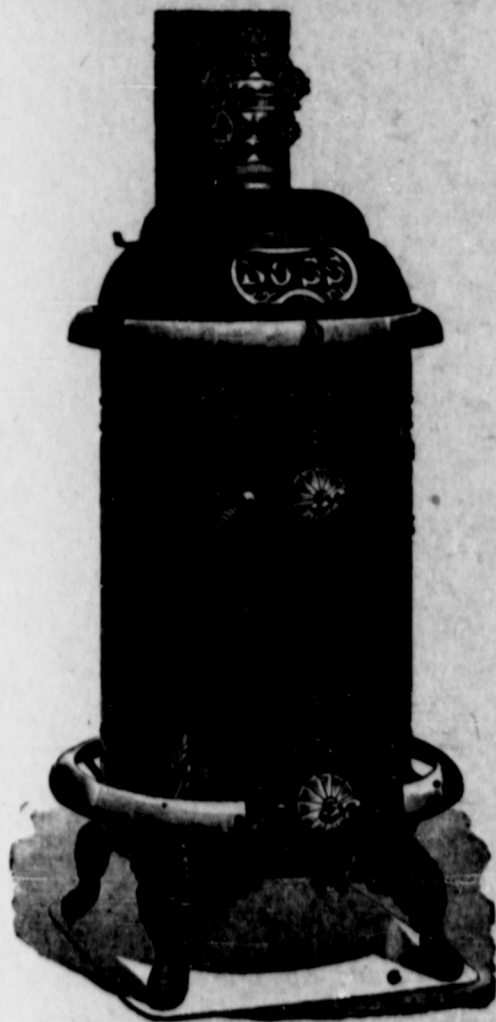

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Since January 1 last there has been paid out by the State more than $100,000 for soldiers to suppress the night riders. The Board Equalization increased the assessment on farm lands to an amount that provided $200,000 of new money, thus making the expense of the soldiers fall on the farmers. As there will be soldiers as long as there are night riders, the quicker the organization disbands the better.

Two Years or More.

Every season we see freakish styles in women's garments. But most American women do not want to attract undue attention, and moreover, can't afford to buy garments that will go out of style after a few weeks. For these the "Bischof" coats and suits are designed. They embody the smart, foreign touches that set the fashion, but only those sensible enough to remain in vogue all season and next, too. As example of this you will find the new fall garments with the raised waist line, the long, small, close-fitting sleeve, the plain gored skirt, etc. Women buying these garments can rest assured that they will look well dressed in them for at least two years and very likely longer. It is time well spent to see these distinctive models next Thursday, the 15th, at Smith & Amberg's.

Several of our citizens have asked why Hickman voters did not register last Tuesday. A recent act of the State Legislature repealed the law requiring voters in cities of this class to register. In fact, it looks to us like registration in cities of fourth and fifth class is a needless expenditure.

Will Pay Teachers.

State Treasurer Edwin Farley says he will have enough money in the treasury this week to pay all the county school teachers in the State the first installment due them, which amounts to about $375,000. The money for the city school teachers will be sent out a little later, probably by the middle or last of October. Capt. Farley thinks that by the middle of November there will be enough money on hand to pay all comers, and there need be no further delay in having bills against the State paid promptly.

He says he has had several communications criticising him for giving preference to the poorly paid school teachers but after he explained the facts no further objections have been raised.

Smith & Amberg's Show.

Fully five hundred people attended the free, out door entertainment, given by Sir Charles Patriot and Lady Blanch Society, representing the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co., of St. Louis, in this city Monday night.

Interesting reproductions of the St. Louis World's Fair scenes, moving pictures and views giving some idea of the magnitude of the factories which make Star Brand shoes were shown in an interesting manner.

On Monday afternoon, these people held a reception at the store of the progressive firm of Smith & Amberg, where Lady Blanch attracted many of the Ladies on account of the $500 Parisian gown and $100 hat which she wore. Of course, there are plenty of $500 gowns in Hickman, but we merely wanted to see what St. Louis folks are wearing this fall. Sir Charles wore a costume of the Colonial age pattern—reminding us of the drawings in that part of our old school history dealing with the Declaration of Independence.

The object of the free show was to advertise Star Brand shoes—a mighty good line, by-the-way, but those who turned out to see it were not disappointed in the least.

Its a way Smith & Amberg have.

Must Get 12 Cents.

The farmers of near Jackson, Tenn., were thrown into a great excitement Wednesday morning when notices were found posted on the doors of the gins of G. F. Ward, Arch Hanes and W. C. Arnold, on which was written: "Gin no more cotton until 12 cents is reached. N. Rider, Big Chief." The ginners were alarmed and say they are afraid to continue ginning, lest their plants be burned. The feeling there is if the night riders attempt to pursue the same tactics as in the tobacco section, no efforts will be spared to wipe them out.

Baptist Meeting Closed.

The revival meeting at the Baptist church in this city was brought to a close last Friday night, after 15 days of earnest endeavor by the local pastor, Rev. Turkington, assisted by State Evangelist McCarter, of Elkton.

Eight additions were made to the church as a result of this service, beside putting new life into the church.

Mill And Feed Store.

J. R. Brown is erecting a frame building on the corner of Carroll and Kentucky streets, which he will use as a mill and feed store. Machinery for grinding meal, chops, etc., will be installed in the rear of the building.

The new concern will be known as the Hickman Mill & Feed Co., and will handle flour, meal, chops, bran, hay, etc. Also bacon, sugar, coffee, lard, etc.

Mr. Brown expects to be ready for business in a short time.

Watch for his advertisement.

Don't get worked up about night riders. The killing of a negro family near this city has no significance so far as real night rider troubles are concerned. Those who are acquainted with local conditions have reason to believe that the posse who killed the negroes went to his home with no other intention than that of giving the negro a good, sound thrashing, but were compelled to do violence because he brought it on himself.

E. D. Wallace, of Jordan, sends the Courier a sample of the sweet potatoes they raise in that part of Fulton county. It measures 2 1/2 inches in circumference and weighs 6 pounds. He tells us there were just two in the hill, both being about the same size.

Tuesday's Entertainment.

The Misses Burrow, of Milan, Tenn., musicians and entertainers, gave an entertainment at the opera house, Tuesday night. The entertainment consisted of violin, piano, and vocal music, interspersed with comique readings; and in the words of the gentleman who introduced the ladies, "augmented by local talent."

The artistic and masterful manipulation of the violin by Miss Shelly Burrow, and readings and piano solos by Miss Nelle Burrow were greatly enjoyed by those present, being repeatedly encored.

These young ladies are musicians of exceptional attainments, and will always be greeted with an appreciative audience upon their return to this city.

Dredging Above Hickman.

The U. S. Dredge Boat, the Delta, is now stationed at Medley, on the Kentucky side, and is making a fifteen foot channel. The river had gotten so shallow at this place that it is getting hard to get over. This dredge boat cuts out about two thousand feet a day, and will possibly be through by Sunday. Henry Fisher, a former resident of Hickman, has charge of this boat. He will be remembered by a number of the older citizens, as he was reared here. The towboat, Sachem, and a large pile driver are with this Dredge boat.

Becomes Every Woman.

This season all women, whether stout or slender, can wear the prevailing style and look well in it. Because of this the new "Bischof" Directoire models in coats and suits have attained instant popularity everywhere. The long points on the hips attenuate the figure of a stout woman. And the Consulat collar adds to her height. The slender woman appears extremely youthful and more graceful than ever. Every woman should see how well these garments become her before getting her fall outfit. They can be obtained right here in every material and practically an unlimited number of patterns and designs. These goods will be on display next Thursday, the 15th at Smith & Amberg's.

O'Conner-Brock.

L. A. Brock, the popular Singer Sewing Machine man, took his friends by surprise, Sunday, when he was married to Mrs. Harriet O'Conner, of near Hornbeak, Tenn.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Turkington, at the residence of Mrs. Tucker, in West Hickman, in the presence of a limited number of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Brock will make their home in this city.

The Courier extends best wishes.

Rush Creek.

Mrs. Jas. Roper is quite sick at this writing.

S. T. Roper was the guest of relatives here Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Noonan has been on the sick list this week.

Walter Crostic has been entertaining his mother for several days.

Mrs. Israel Clark, who has been quite ill of typhoid fever, is improving slowly.

Price Henry writes that he is much improved and that he will return home this week.

Rev. Bransford and wife and Mrs. Joe Nailling were the guests of Mrs. W. B. McGehee Wednesday.

We regret to state that owing to the severe illness of his wife, T. C. Bondurant, our mail carrier, was unable to make his rounds Tuesday.

Our community was shocked and pained to learn of the suicide of Mr. Lee Morris, at Moscow, last Saturday morning. He was a good man and beloved by all who knew him.

It still continues dry and we need rain badly. Some farmers in this section are sowing wheat while others are waiting for rain. Several have stopped plowing, it being too dry to plow.

Miss Mary Burns and Hugh Cruce were married at Cayce church last Sunday evening, Rev. Bransford officiating in his most pleasing manner. Miss Annie Cruce and C. Hall and Miss Rose Underwood and Mr. Hammond were attendants and Tom Atteberry and Almus Wahl acted as ushers.

Fiscal Court.

A regular term of the Fulton County Fiscal Court was held in Hickman Tuesday and Wednesday.

Magistrates Williams, Browder, Whipple and Jackson were in attendance.

A number of claims were allowed and three new steel bridges were ordered built in the county. They are to cost $3200, and the contract was given to W. T. Young Bridge Co., of Nashville. One of the bridges will be built across Big Slough in the bottom and one on State Road and one on the Fulton and Beelerton road near Fulton.

Grass.

"Grass is the forgiveness of Nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass grown like rural lanes, and are obliterated.

"Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Bequeathed by the sullen hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impregnable fortress of its subterranean vitality, and emerges up on the first solicitation of Spring. Sown by the winds, by wandering birds, propagated by the subtle horticulture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. Its tenacious fibers hold the earth in its place, and prevent its soluble components from washing into the wasting sea. It invades the solitude of deserts, climbs the inaccessible slopes and forbidding pinnacles of mountains, modifies climates, and determines the history, character and destiny of nations.

"Unobtrusive and patient, it has immortal vigor and aggression. Banished from the thoroughfare and the field, it bides its time to return, and when vigilance is relaxed, or the dynasty has perished, it silently resumes the throne from which it has been expelled, but which it never abdicates.

"It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, yet, should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world."

The Sunflower.

In some countries, notably in the Russian provinces north of the Caucasus, the sunflower serves other purposes besides ornamenting gardens with its golden bosses. The seeds are used to make oil, which is employed both in the manufacture of soap and cooking. The stems and leaves are burned and the ashes used to make potash. Last year the sunflower factories of the Caucasus produced 15,000 tons of potash.—Youth's Companion.

The Courier and the weekly Commercial-Appeal one year for $1.25.

Courier's Home Circle

God placed somewhere in the heart of each of us a tender memory, which enables us to touch with a gentle hand or soothing word the hearts of the afflicted. What a comfort to know that for every heartache, there is somewhere in the universe a heaven inspired soul to comfort those downcast. Let us make our words as dew from heaven, touching with gentle hand the withered flowers, giving new vigor to the hardy.

The great drawback to domestic felicity often lies in the fact that we get too familiar with one another. There should be a certain reserve in the most intimate relationship. Members of the same family have no right to burst into one another's rooms without knocking. Wives have no more right to search their husbands' pockets than they have to do the same little service for a distant acquaintance. You have no more right to rob the baby's bank, than to force the vault of the first National.

HOME HAPPINESS.

Probably nineteen-twentieths of the happiness you will ever have, you will get at home. The independence that comes to a man when his work is over and he feels that he has run out of the storm into the quiet harbor of home, where he can rest in peace with his family, is something real. It does not make much difference whether you own your house or have one little room in that house, you can make that little room a home to you. You can people it with such moods, you can turn to it with such sweet fancies, that it will be to you the very perfection of a home. Against this home none of you should ever transgress.

Make your homes pleasant to your children and there will be no armies of unemployed marching through the country. In America every sober, industrious, honest young man can find employment. He may have to accept of a humble calling, but will rapidly climb the ladder. "As the twig is bent the tree is inclined" and it is the homes without pleasures or happiness that sends the children upon the streets in search of a more congenial atmosphere than they find beneath the parental roof. There are none of us so poor but we can train a few roses on the humble wall, and their scent and beauty will long be remembered, and many a boy, instead of going to loaf upon the public highway will linger at home among the flowers. Moral degradation always begins at home. Honesty is never gained or lost suddenly, or by accident, but idleness feeds upon it and will, in time, use up the last vestige. The happy home, be it a cottage or a mansion, furnishes no recruits for any army of unemployed.

DON'TS FOR FARMERS.

Don't try to please your wife. Don't appreciate one thing she does.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Potent laxatives are then resorted to, and the blood is kept in a state of impurity.

Don't help care for the children That is what you got her for.

Don't be ashamed to read that the majority of insane women are farmers' wives.

Don't get a bucket of water from the cistern when asked. Any one can pump who half tries.

Don't fail to invite company for Sunday dinner without letting her know so she can have a day for rest.

Don't fail to ask your wife if she wants you to do all the house work if she asks you to put some wood in the stove.

Don't wonder that your food has a peculiar flavor, for it is seasoned with blasted hopes, and sighs of disappointment.

Don't neglect asking what she has done with all the egg and butter money, for it will more than supply the table, help pay the hired man, and get the children books and clothes.

Do you like the neighbor who is eternally borrowing and never returning? Now tell the truth, do you? Of course not! Nobody does.

MOTHER.

Of all the words cherished in the recollection of man—of all the names held sacred in his memory, that of mother falls upon his heart with the most sublime influence. How sweet the recollection in after years of a mother's tender training, and who is there that finds no relief in recurring to the scenes of his infancy and youth gilded with the recollections of a mother's tenderness. And how many have nobly owned, that to the salutary influence, then exerted, they must ascribe their future success, their avoidance of evil, when no eyes were upon them, but which rested on the heart, the warnings, prayers and tears of a mother.

Others may love as fondly, but never again while time is ours, shall any one's love be to us as fond, as tender, as devoted, as was that of our dear old trembling mother. Through helpless infancy her throbbing heart was our safe protection and support, and through the ills and maladies of childhood, her gentle hand ministered and soothed as none other could. We feel animated to struggle more manfully in the great battle of life, when we remember our mother's holy counsel to us in childhood's early dawn and in the slippery paths of youth. Ah! those words of tenderness—those pious precepts softened by a mother's love—too much unheeded, then disregarded—live now brightened in memory, and constitute our sweetest recollections. Her prayers for us in childhood—her sparkling crystal tears—made an impression on our young mind as durable as time, and even now they bid us walk in the paths of rectitude.

But alas! how little do a majority of us appreciate a mother's tenderness while living! How heedless are we in youth of all her anxieties and kindness! But when she is dead and gone; when the cares and coldness of the world come withering to our hearts; when we experience how hard it is to find true sympathy, how few will befriend us in our misfortune, then we think of the mother that loved us and to her our hearts turn yearningly.

The two best books to a child are a good mother's face and life.

Every woman has an ideal husband before marriage, and a very real one after it.

If you make children happy now you make them happy twenty years from now by the remembrance of it.

An Editor Revolt.

It is told of a Michigan editor that he grew tired lying about people in obituary notices, and then have people call him a hypocrite, so he wrote up one well known citizen as follows:

Died—Aged fifty-six years, six months and fifteen days. Deceased was a mild mannered pirate with a mouth for whiskey and an eye for boodle. He owed us seven dollars on the paper. You could hear him pray six blocks. He died singing "Jesus Paid It All." And we think he is right as he never paid anything himself.

He was buried in an asbestos casket and his friends threw palm fronds into his grave, as he may need them. His tombstone will be a favorite resting place for hoot owls.

Money to Loan.

I can make farm loans in Fulton county, Ky., at the rate of 5-1-2 per cent per annum on first class improved farming lands. Not more than half the cash value of a farm will be loaned. Loans made for five years with privilege to borrower of paying same after two years in full or making any size partial payment desired at intervals of six months after the expiration of two years from date of loan. 13tf-c

Many Houses Built.

Thirty-five new residences will have been built in Hickman since January 1, when Contractor J. H. Provo completes a contract for W. Johnson, which calls for six 4 room houses in West Hickman, near the new cotton gin.

Mr. Provo has just finished a contract of eleven houses for C. A. Schombe, in West Hickman.

Even though this has been a "dole" year, Hickman has been doing right along. There are very few other towns in the state the size of Hickman that have invested as much capital during the year as this—"The Queen City of West."

No. 38—Fine 440 acre stock farm, Mississippi county, Mo., has four houses on it, together with other improvements. 195 acres are planted in timber 390 acres are planted in alfalfa. The owner is cutting five crops of alfalfa this place each year, and the cotton and corn now growing will give an idea of its fertility. Rents $4.50 an acre. Price reasonable.—Hickman Courier & Advertiser Co.

FLOWER LANGUAGE

Byron Williams.

He met her in the glory of a day beyond compare, Beside a rippling river, with the sunbeams in her hair. He lost his heart completely and he sent her tulips red. They breathed: "I love you, sweet heart," but the maiden shook her head.

Ah, next he carried thither, with the silvery moon above, A bunch of sweet arbutus, vowing: "You alone, I love!" And then, some four-leaf clovers he dispatched her as a sign That spoke in turquoise colors to the maiden: "O, be mine!"

A wild, white daisy then she plucked from out the meadow way. It told him plainly as could be: "I'll think of it—some day." Ah, how he showered upon the lass forget-me-nots galore, Camellias, red chrysanthemums and roses by the score!

A Mere Rumor.

Upon investigation, the Courier finds that the report, which has been pretty well circulated around here, to the effect that night riders had ordered the Hickman cotton gins to close, is without foundation. No such warning has been received.

This rumor possibly grew out of the Troy Tenn., gin troubles. It is true that a gin at that place was closed last week on account of threats made by the night riders and partly for another reason. The closing of that gin was the cause of considerable Tennessee cotton being brought to Hickman, and Mr. Moffett (whose gin was shut down) sent word to S. L. Doods that it might be hazardous to buy cotton from that section, and Mr. Doods, acting on this advice, declined to buy some cotton from near Troy. The Farmers Gin & Grain Co., however, continued to buy all the Tennessee cotton that was offered them without fear of serious consequences. One gin at Troy is still in operation. It is owned or controlled by the farmers union, and those who are having their cotton ginned are holding it for a better price. So long as they do that, we are told, the night riders will have no kick, as they demand that cotton must not be sold for less than a certain figure.

So that is about the substance of the report.

SYNOPSIS.

Gerard Chambers, son of a wealthy importer and a student at an eastern college, was awarded a membership in the Club of the Gemini, a secret organization, founded by Rodney Graves. The society was exclusive, only seven being admitted. The members were known as "Persons." A meeting was held and each member was awarded the "call of destiny." Chambers was told to pass a period as a sailor and set foot in North America for a year. Then he was to be assigned to another year's exile. He must make his own living unassisted, and keep everything a secret. He gained his father's consent. He also acquainted Marsella Bayless, his father's choice for his wife, with the fact that he would be away two years. She left him angrily. Jerry obtained a berth as supercargo on an ocean freighter bound for Urania, South America, loaded with guns for enemies of that government. Chambers was captured and thrown into a dungeon. Marina Bostons, adopted daughter of Gen. Bostons, ministered to his wounds. Each made a strong impression on the other. Jerry was sentenced to die. Upon promise of Marina's love, Capt. Pilars freed Chambers. All three united with Gen. Barado's rebels. Chambers being made a captain. Capt. Pilars died of fever. Marina accompanied his body to burial. In a fierce battle Barado defeated Bostons. Jerry frustrated an attempt to assassinate Gen. Barado. Marina's funeral party was attacked and she was reported missing. Pandaro, capital of Urania, was captured and a confederacy established. Chambers was made much of. By that time Marina was given up as dead. He then sailed for Havana in order to report to Mexico City for further instructions. The ship encountered a terrible storm and was dashed on the rocks. Jerry saved himself by clinging to a mast. He found himself too late to catch a boat for Mexico. He recognized Marina Bostons, a passenger on a yacht sailing immediately for Mexico. By a ruse he gained the deck. He discovered that Marina was being held a prisoner on board. Jerry successfully passed prepared test of a possible interest in Marina, which plotters suspected. He wrote her a note and confided the whole story to the American engineer, who promised aid. The plotters took Marina into Vera Cruz, secretly. Jerry following by swimming after he had knocked senseless the captain of the vessel.

Without waiting to see what effect the blow had had, Jerry was at the hatchway snatching the life preserver from its fastening. A moment later, after casting a final glance at the still body of the officer, he climbed over the rail and dropped into the black water.

Mike O'Connor's quick wits were hard at work the moment after Jerry announced his determination to leave the vessel that night and to risk his life in the waters of the harbor. After taking the launch in about 100 yards he suddenly stopped the machinery and appeared to be worried.

"Come, come, man," impatiently said Andre, who sat nearest him. "Why do you not go on?"

"The propeller is balking," answered Mike, seeming to concentrate his whole attention to a part of the machinery. His sole purpose in stopping the machinery was to afford Jerry all possible time before effecting a landing. The delay was not as long as he intended it should be, for the impatient, nervous Andre touched the wheel that set the propeller in motion again.

Mike made no excuse, but his wits were working harder than ever. He was as familiar with the waters and the dockage of Vera Cruz as any sailor that came to them, but this time he determined to make his memory fail. Instead of drawing up at the proper pier he nosed the boat into an adjoining slip, discovering the "mistake" only after he had gone 25 yards. He exercised undue caution in swinging the launch around and in picking his way to the right landing place, which, judging from the conversation, was familiar to Andre. As he brought the boat to a stop, he figured that he had unnecessarily consumed about 20 minutes. He also knew, however, that Jerry had not had time to reach the pier, and there was a feeling deep in his heart that he would not succeed in getting to shore at all.

Andre and Felipe appeared very nervous as they landed, each continually casting his eyes about and scanning the faces of the few men at the landing. Mike assisted in taking some luggage to the end of the pier, where a closed carriage was waiting. There was no other vehicle in sight, and the quick-thinking Irish-American, unable to hear the instructions given the driver, noted the color of the horses and got a good look at the man on the box. Andre gave Mike a coin, and the next moment the horses were clattering down the dark, narrow street.

Mike waited in the shadows at the end of the pier for more than two hours, and he was beginning to fear all the more that Jerry had not succeeded in reaching shore when he saw a small boat draw up at the landing. He got further back in the shadows, for he knew that the boat was from the yacht. Presently the captain and a member of the crew walked briskly down the pier, stopping and looking about within 20 feet from where he was hidden.

"He's had more than plenty of time to get back," fumed the captain, who wore a bandage over his eye, "and he is in league with that other fellow. What a damned fool I was to trust an American!"

The conversation that followed indicated to Mike that the jackie was in the captain's confidence.

"You know where they went from here?" asked the jackie.

"To a house in Calle Cordoba, I think," said the officer. "I don't know where it is, and it will be impossible for me to see them until they keep their appointment with me to-day."

Mike O'Connor determined not to lose sight of the captain, but a few minutes later the officer and his man returned to the yacht. Mike watched them until he saw them going over the side of the vessel, and then ventured from his hiding place, just in time to see the dripping Jerry coming towards him.

"Thank God, you're saved, anyway!" exclaimed Mike, drawing him into the shadows and embracing him. Jerry was so exhausted that he could not speak for a minute or two, and it was not until Mike had gone down the street to an "all-nighter" and procured some whisky, of which Jerry partook freely, that he told of his death-inviting swim. The excitement that was aroused within him by the story told by Mike gave him new strength.

It was agreed that the thing to do was to wait the captain and to shadow him to the place where he was to meet Andre and Felipe. In the meantime, one at a time, they bought suits of cheap clothing and ate breakfast at a little restaurant near the pier.

Five o'clock in the afternoon rolled around, but the captain had not left the yacht, so far as they knew, and there was scarcely a moment that the eyes of one or the other were not on the boat. The waiting wore heavily on the shattered nerves of Jerry, but there was nothing else to do but wait. Mike tried to find the driver of the carriage, but he saw nobody that resembled him.

Towards six o'clock the captain came ashore, the man who rowed him in returning immediately to the yacht. Jerry, hidden with Mike behind a great pile of boxes, actually smiled when he beheld the bandage over his eye.

"That's what he got for getting gay," said he. The next moment he thought nothing of the fight he had had with the officer, who walked briskly to a small store across the street. He stood in the doorway fully 15 minutes, looking in the direction of the pier, and Mike and Jerry did not dare move. Presently, after looking at his watch, he called a cab and soon was being driven in a direction opposite from that taken by the four in the carriage.

The cab turned at the first corner, and Jerry and Mike fairly ran to the only other vehicle in sight, a ramshackle cab with a sleepy driver on the seat.

"Keep a block behind the cab that just left," snapped Jerry, "and if it stops, you stop. You get five times the regular price."

The driver ran his horse in a full gallop to the next corner, and when he got into the cross street Jerry, bubbling over with fear and apprehension, opened the door and looked out. The captain's cab was a little more than a block ahead. It may have occurred to the officer that he was being followed, for the route taken by his driver was long and zigzaggy. The chase was kept up successfully, and Jerry directed his driver to turn up another street a few yards and stop. He got out of the cab and ran to the corner. The captain's cab was two blocks away now, and Jerry could distinguish the driver in the act of wielding his whip.

"After him, after him!" cried Jerry, running back to the cab.

Just as he was about to re-enter the vehicle a thought struck him so forcibly that he had to reach for the wheel to support himself.

"Good heavens, Mike!" he exclaimed, his face without a drop of color in it, "what time is it?"

Mike, wearing an expression of great surprise, pulled out his watch and said:

"Eight thirty-five."

Jerry simply gasped.

"Driver, where are we?" he managed to ask.

"In Calle Morelia."

"How far is it to the station of the National line?"

"About four miles."

"God!" and Jerry brought his hand to his forehead.

"Why—what—" began the bewildered O'Connor.

"You follow, Mike! I must catch a train at 9:30!"

"But they'll—"

"Keep after him, Mike, and telegraph me at—Calle Coliseo, Mexico, to-morrow without fail! I can't stop to tell you anything now, old man, but follow, follow, follow!"

The next instant Jerry Chambers was running down the street, not knowing whether he was going in the right direction or not, and before he had covered 25 feet the driver was receiving instructions from Mike to keep after the captain's cab.

CHAPTER XX.

A Letter for Rodney Graves.

Just how Jerry Chambers managed to reach the station of the National line in time to catch the train for the City of Mexico he never was able to explain fully. He simply gave Luck the entire credit for his success.

Once on that train, which began to steam out just as he fell into a seat, a thoroughly exhausted creature, he breathlessly ran his eyes over a timetable. Calculating that the train would arrive in the City of Mexico according to schedule, he figured that he would have one hour in which to reach the number in Calle Coliseo. He felt that Luck would not desert him now, and he worried but little about the train's being on time.

His heart grew cold at the thought that perhaps Mike O'Connor would not continue to follow the captain of the yacht, and that the mysterious trio would succeed in spiriting Marina beyond his ultimate reach.

"If I only had had another day," he thought, mentally cursing the luck that had stood by him so valiantly, "I could have rescued her. Mike O'Connor may keep on the trail, and he may not. Still, I believe that the spirit of adventure in him will serve me well. He does not dare return to the yacht; the captain would make short work of him if he did. The task is all the harder now, for the captain will apprise the kidnapers of their danger, and the chances are they will be able to elude Mike, however vigilant he may be. Damn a Gemini's luck, anyway!"

It was not until the train was waiting at Jalapa for a connecting train that was 15 minutes late that he paled at the doubt of reaching the place in Calle Coliseo before noon of the next day.

When the train finally did pull out, a quarter of an hour behind the scheduled time, he experienced great relief, and his hope rose high when a trainman gave him reasonable assurance that there would be no further loss of time, and that the engineer probably would make up the lost time on the straight stretches of track ahead. But there was new worry ahead of him.

On the outskirts of the City of Mexico the corner of a small house being moved from one lot to another was still on the track, and another 15 minutes was lost before the train could proceed. Jerry had but 30 minutes in which to go from the station to the place in Calle Coliseo, and when he learned that the distance was more than three miles he scarcely could control himself. Of the six or eight cabs lined up at the station he jumped into the one whose horse looked the fastest and urged the driver to stop at nothing in taking him to the specified number.

When the panting, lathered horse was suddenly brought to a halt, and Jerry saw that he was at the place, the clock in a tower a few blocks away indicated two minutes before noon. He tossed what remaining money he had at the driver and rushed into the building, over whose door hung the sign: "Thomas Wentworth, Assayer."

It was a small, narrow room, in which there were but two desks. At the first desk sat a gray-haired man of about 60 years, and as Jerry came up to him, scarcely able to get a word out of his mouth, the man smiled and nodded his head significantly.

"Is there a letter here for Rodney Graves?" Jerry panted.

Without a word the man, who later introduced himself as Thomas Wentworth of The College class of '64 and who wore on the lapel of his coat the Pin of the Twins, handed Jerry a long envelope addressed to Rodney Graves.

Mike O'Connor told the driver of his cab that if he did not keep the captain's cab in sight he would be trounced to within an inch of his life.

The captain's cab now had a lead of three blocks, and it was with difficulty that it could be distinguished in the darkness. Mike, fearing that the driver might not follow out the instructions, stopped long enough to get on the seat with him. It was there that he made that driver blanch with fright.

Mike steadily gained on the captain, and it was not long before he was only a block and a half behind. Then, seeing the captain's cab draw up to the curbing, Mike directed his driver to turn into a side street. He immediately dismounted and peeped around the building on the corner. The captain stood in the middle of the sidewalk fully a minute before he sent his driver away, and kept casting glances up and down the street for several minutes before he went to the door of the house. Mike knew Vera Cruz well enough to find his way around, and he told his man to drive on a few blocks and wait. Then he went to the other side of the street and, moving cautiously in the darkest shadows, soon was almost opposite the house which the captain had entered. The faint light over the door revealed a number he had heard the officer mention at the pier.

The house stood in the middle of a yard, and Mike was able to see three sides of it. The only light visible shone through a rear basement window. Mike O'Connor was a brave man, but when he thought of stealing through the shadows to that window a chill flashed over his sturdy frame. This thought came only after he had waited almost two hours.

"They ain't comin' out to-night," he said to himself, "and what's goin' on in there is enough to fill a book. Tom'm wouldn't stop at it, and I'll be damned if I do!" Gripping his revolver and setting his teeth in Irish determination, he stealthily picked his way to the yard and crept to the window, which was open. He crawled to a position from which he could look into the room. He saw Andre, Felipe, the captain and an old man wearing a white beard.

"Then, we must get out," he heard Andre say, desperately, "and there is no time to lose. We must not take the train in the city, but at some place outside."

"The fast train can be stopped at Blanco del Oro," said the captain, "if there are at least five persons in the party."

"Riaz here will make the fifth," said Felipe. "What time does the train reach there?"

"It's a run of two hours from here," answered the captain.

"How far to Jimenez?"

"Between 30 and 35 hours from Mexico. The rest of the way must be in a wagon or boat, as Riaz knows, and it should be covered in 24 hours easily."

Mike O'Connor waited no longer. He thought of having the house surrounded by the police, but the time it would take to get the required response from the authorities would be too long. He arrived in the business section of the city soon after day-break and went into a private stall of a small eating house. He had intended remaining there only long enough to drink a cup of coffee and eat some bread, but he was tired and fell asleep. When he awoke it was after ten o'clock. The thought of communicating with Jerry Chambers was the first to enter his mind, and he hastened to a telegraph office and sent the following message to "Tom Flannery":

"Located them. Watch train into Mexico. Mike is coming."

CHAPTER XXI.

Into Another Year of Uncertainty.

Jerry put the envelope into his pocket, for the instructions he had received from the black sack of destiny in the darkness of the chamber a year before gave him an hour in which to acquaint himself with its contents. Mr. Wentworth, a quiet, pleasant gentleman, had been in Mexico for more than 15 years, and it had been said that but few knew more about the mines and mining possibilities of the country than he. He showed much interest in Jerry, but not once did he touch upon the sacred subject of his experience in the twelvemonth just ended.

"That envelope," said he, "was in my keeping for almost a year, having come from New York, and it has been in my safe until this very morning. I trust that you will have luncheon with me to-day and that, if conditions are favorable, you may see your way clear to spend a few days at my home."

It was about 12:30 o'clock when a messenger boy entered the office. He handed Mr. Wentworth a telegram, which was immediately returned to him, with:

"Wrong address; there is no such person here."

The lad was closing the door after him when it suddenly occurred to Jerry that he had asked Mike O'Connor to wire him at that number.

"Was that for me?" he asked.

"No; it was for Tom Flannery. There is no such fellow—"

"Great Scott, that's meant for me!" exclaimed Jerry, as he started after the boy. He could not conceal his uneasiness and intense interest after he had read Mike's short message, and the old Gemini plainly noticed his perturbed condition.

"Important news, I daresay," said Wentworth.

"By jingo, but he's a brick!" said the dancing-eyed Jerry. "He's constructed of the right material, that fellow is. I felt deep down in my heart all along that he would be 'Johnny on the spot,' and—"

"A brick—right material—Johnny on the spot?" broke in the wondering Mr. Wentworth.

Jerry colored as he stammered something that was intended for an explanation, but which only served to mystify the other all the more.

"I think you need a cup of strong coffee," smiled Wentworth, "so we'll go out to luncheon now." He had not risen from his chair before Jerry floundered:

"Really, Mr. Wentworth, you'll have to excuse me to-day. I am tremendously obliged to you, but you see—I—that is, but I had a late breakfast, and I'm not a bit hungry. What time do the trains get in?"

"From Vera Cruz, of course. Are there many of them, and which is the first?"

"Well, really, brother, I am not familiar with the time of train arrivals and departures. But I shall insist that you come along right away for a cup of coffee."

The clock over the desk indicated 12:40.

"All right," said Jerry, as pleasantly as possible, but he really wanted to be away from his elderly fraternity brother.

They were at a table in a near-by eating house when he suddenly thought of the time. Mr. Wentworth's watch showed 12:58.

"Thunder!" exclaimed Jerry. "You'll excuse me, won't you?" he managed to smile, as he snatched the envelope from his pocket. Twelve $50 United States of America gold certificates fell from the folded sheet of paper to the table.

"Great Scott, That's Meant for Me!" Exclaimed Jerry.

"Well, well," said Mr. Wentworth; "that is welcome news. I trust that the letter is quite as—"

"Wait a second," broke in Jerry, for he had only a minute in which to read those instructions. As his eyes hastily passed over the lines his face paled and his chin dropped. For a moment he simply stared at the other.

"I hope there is nothing—" solicitously began Wentworth.

"For heaven's sake!" Jerry burst out, cold moisture forming on his brow.

"Well, well?"

"Great Scott!"

"Yes—well?"

"This is the limit!"

Mr. Wentworth merely looked at him, the picture of intense interest. Jerry, his brow knit, re-read the instructions, and then laughed feebly.

"It's none of my business, of course?" said Wentworth.

"No; but I'd give 17 times the amount of those bills if it were all your business. What the devil do I know about it? You know all about it."

Jerry, practically devoid of all sociability, left Mr. Wentworth at the next corner, promising to return to his office not later than six o'clock. He walked for several blocks down the street, oblivious to all surroundings, and then turned into a quiet saloon, where, at a table at the end of the room, he re-read these instructions:

"Ye Person of The Gemini, ye have performed well; the spirit of Rodney Graves knows ye have performed well. But ye have not yet earned an enduring right to your priceless Personality. Ye must, therefore, do as ye are told herein to the best of your ability."

"Go ye forth to the City of Escalon, State of Chihuahua, Republic of Mexico, where, at the office of the Mining & Smelting Company—"

Calle Gomez, ye shall inquire for an envelope addressed to Rodney Graves. The contents of this envelope will give ye further instructions."

"Ye shall be in possession of the envelope not later than 40 hours after 12 o'clock (noon) of the nineteenth day of June, 1899."

"Ye Person of The Gemini, ye have been given life on the land and on the water, and now shall ye be shown into the sphere beneath the surface of the earth. That ye may know the spirit of your beloved Gemini to be sufficient, ye may have with ye one companion, whomsoever ye may choose, but who, whatever may arise, shall not know the true purpose of your mission. Ye must keep inviolably secret these instructions and all instructions to follow."

"May the spirit of Rodney Graves guide ye well and the wishes of all Gemini give ye unbounded courage."

Jerry tried to procure a railroad time table at the saloon, but was unsuccessful. Then he set out for a railroad office. As he walked briskly down the street, unconsciously bumping into pedestrians, his brain was in a stew.

"I wonder where in the devil this Escalon is, anyway," he thought.

There were several persons in the railroad office when Jerry, pushing his way to the desk, asked the agent:

"Where is Escalon?"

"A little more than 800 miles on our main line—north."

"Eight hundred miles!" gasped Jerry, his manner attracting the attention of everybody in the office. "How long, for heaven's sake, does it take to get there?"

"Our fast train makes it in a little less than 20 hours," answered the wondering agent.

"Thirty hours, eh? Well, that'll give me ten hours to spare, won't it?"

And—

"Ten hours to spare—I don't understand—"

"That'll be all right," snapped Jerry; "of course you don't understand. What time can I get a train?"

"Our next train leaves at five afternoon."

"Gee, that clips five hours of ten, doesn't it? But it still gives plenty of time, anyway."

He bought a ticket and arranged sleeping-car accommodations, an agent accepting payment out of the $50 bills. Jerry soon after had the rest of his money exchanged for Mexican currency. Then he went into a hotel, where he picked a quiet corner in the rotunda and tried to settle down to rational thinking.

"Mike will not be here by that time he said to himself, 'and it's as good as a riddle that Marina will be anywhere successfully. What in the world shall I do? If I am not in Escalon within 40 hours I'm off with the Gemini, and if I go, all chances of rescuing her will be gone. I'll try or The Gemini—which? God, but it is enough to drive a man crazy! King like The Gemini would have her from saving me, and—' jump to his feet—'I won't let it keep from saving her! She's a thousand times more to me than—' Here, thought was checked, and he sat down again.

"Will Mike O'Connor send out? He is on the trail, and I believe it's in him to give up. Luck has been with me, and I think it will desert me now. It's a chance with Mike!"

A few minutes later he was in a writing room, where he peered following to Mike O'Connor.

"Your message came to me a short while ago, and you deserve a medal as big as a base-drum. You would not have told anybody that you were made of good old American stuff. Your statement after I dashed away from you so ceremoniously in Vera Cruz shows sort of goods you are made of, and I feel—I know—that there is more of some spirit in you, and that you make good your promise to stick to the finish."

"It is up to you again, old pal; you must keep up the glorious work, cannot tell you anything now, but day you shall know all, and everything will be satisfactory to you. It will be a thing on you. It is the best job yet tackled, Mike, and eventually it will be a thousand times more than the engineer's job in the world."

"Late this afternoon I must leave Escalon, in the southern part of Chihuahua, and as soon as possible I will wire me there, in care of the Mining & Smelting Company. Calle Gomez. I intend to pray your immediate expenses, and you have spent and may spend your own money will be returned to you in fabulous interest. Wire me all particulars, collect. Let me know when I reach you."

"Good luck, old man, and don't fail for heaven's sake."

Jerry immediately started for Wentworth's office, where he left a note, believing that Mike would be there as soon as he could. He talked with Mr. Wentworth until a little after four o'clock, when he started for station.

As he took his seat on the train Escalon his heart was as heavy as that ever beat in the breast of a man, and his conscience was so guilty he blushed in shame.

Vocation.

Every man has his own vocation. There is one direction in which space is open to him. He has to tread silently inviting him thither, endless exertion. He is like a ship on every side but one; and on every side an obstruction is taken away, he sweeps serenely over a deep channel, into an infinite sea. Valdo Emerson.

HASKELL GETS OUT; MAY SUE PRESIDENT

Democratic National Treasurer Resigns Because of Charges--Lively Controversy Engaged in by Governor of Oklahoma, William J. Bryan and Mr. Roosevelt.

Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma resigned as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee short-ly last night following a protracted conference with the late President Roosevelt. Haskell, director of the Democratic National Committee, resigned after a letter of resignation, which was addressed to Chairman Norman E. Mack, of the national committee, was denied the charges made against him by William J. Bryan and President Roosevelt. He resigned in order that nothing should be permitted to cloud the real-ity of the campaign and because he was Mr. Bryan's election.

May Sue Roosevelt.

Haskell formally announced his resignation in a subsequent letter, in which he stated that he would treat his resignation as a resignation from the Democratic National Committee, and would subject himself to the penalties of the law.

Haskell gathered from his general statement that he intended to institute legal action against both Mr. Roosevelt and the president. He stated that he had been attacked by three Wall Street brokers, and that he had been attacked by three Wall Street brokers, and that he had been attacked by three Wall Street brokers.

Haskell's Letter of Resignation.

Haskell's letter of resignation to Norman E. Mack, Chairman Democratic National Committee, New York, N. Y., dated August 1, 1908, is as follows: "Dear Sir: In pursuance of the provisions of the constitution of the Democratic National Committee, I have the honor to inform you that I have resigned my position as treasurer of the committee. I have resigned because of the charges made against me by William J. Bryan and President Roosevelt. I have resigned in order that nothing should be permitted to cloud the reality of the campaign and because I was Mr. Bryan's election."

largest rivals and thus obtained control of more than 50 per cent. of the total output. He asked the president if he would insist that "in permitting this you showed less favor to the monopolistic corporations than I do in opposing it."

President Hits Back at Bryan.

Washington.—President Roosevelt gave out a statement Sunday night that severely scores William J. Bryan and the Democratic party. It was called forth by the criticism of the president, Mr. Taft, and the Republican party's platform by Mr. Bryan.

In answering Mr. Bryan's claim that the Democratic party will pursue the anti-trust prosecutions more vigorously, Mr. Roosevelt asks a comparison of what the two parties have done when in power, pointing out that the last Democratic administration, that in which Mr. Olney was attorney general, instituted but four such cases, two of which failed and a third of which was decided by Mr. Taft in favor of the government.

In comparison to this is the record of the present administration with its mass of anti-trust and rebate cases, the vast majority of the decisions being convictions.

Haskell Urgently Handled.

The last part of the statement is given over to a denunciation of the political life of Gov. Haskell and the manner in which Mr. Bryan accepted the Oklahoma man's service and defended him, even after the accusations against him became public. Mr. Roosevelt mentions many of the shortcomings of which he says Haskell is guilty and declares there are many others not enumerated.

Those specifically mentioned are: That Haskell, as governor of Oklahoma, gave illegal privileges to the Prairie Oil & Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil trust. That he secured title to town lots in Muskogee, Okla., by fraud, drawing them by the use of a "dummy." Haskell now is under indictment on the charge, he says.

That Haskell offered a fee of $500 to an Arkansas lawyer if the latter would lobby in the Muskogee council for the passage of a certain franchise and then refused payment, although the franchise was secured.

That Haskell dodged payment of a judgment by a New York court for $42,335, and that a sheriff's execution failed to recover but $29.80 of this amount.

That Haskell was a member of the Citizens' Alliance, a body formed to fight the union workers and prevent the formation of any defensive body of laboring men.

Roosevelt's Hot Reply.

Washington.—President Roosevelt, upon a prolonged conference with the members of the cabinet at the White House, prepared and gave out by telegraph to William J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate, relative to W. J. Bryan's charges that Gov. Haskell, of Oklahoma, had represented Standard Oil interests both in Ohio and Oklahoma.

Bryan had demanded proof of the charges, promising that in the event of their substantiation Gov. Haskell would be eliminated from the campaign.

Using the Ohio case, which involved an allegation of attempted bribery, with the explanation that he had no direct charge against Haskell as regards that particular matter, President Roosevelt takes issue with the charges that Gov. Haskell had represented Standard Oil Company, and argues that Haskell's action in stopping legal proceedings begun by the attorney general of Oklahoma demonstrates that he was controlled by the Standard Oil Company, which was a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company.

fight the union workers and prevent the formation of any defensive body of laboring men.

Foraker's Hot Reply.

Cincinnati.—Senator Foraker prepared a statement which was made public Friday, replying to the recent charges made by William R. Hearst and President Roosevelt. In addition he bitterly assails Hearst, Taft and the president, charging Taft with conspiring with Standard Oil magnates himself and declaring that President Roosevelt's actions indicate a guilty conscience. In the opening paragraph Mr. Foraker declared that the president showed bias in accepting as true all the charges. He denied that he acted improperly in accepting employment from the Standard Oil Company, said that there was no secret about it and produced letters to prove that after the government began its attack upon the Standard Oil, he declined to accept a retainer from them. He charged that Mr. Hearst had other letters in addition to those which he gave out, and that these other letters, if made public at the same time, would have shown how harmless was his connection with the Standard Oil people.

Taft Answers Foraker.

Albert Lea, Minn.—William H. Taft issued a statement in denial of certain allegations made by Senator Foraker in his statement. The Republican candidate does not touch on the general defense put up by the Ohio senator, but confines himself entirely to that part of the address which directly concerns himself.

There are two of these charges and they were denied in vigorous language. Both of them were meant to show Mr. Taft at least was in sympathy with the Standard Oil crowd.

The Judge Doyle Incident.

As to the first, Mr. Taft says: "Senator Foraker says I recommended Judge Doyle for a United States judgeship in northern Ohio and the president acquiesced in the recommendation when we knew that he was attorney for the Standard Oil Company, and argues that this is a justification for him, while a senator of the United States, in accepting professional employment from the Standard Oil Company and in making what was in effect a newspaper partnership with the Standard Oil Company to control an organ of public opinion."

"Judge Doyle held no public office and numbered the Standard Oil Company as one among a number of clients. I told the president Judge Doyle was a man of high character and a lawyer of great ability and experience and would make a good judge, but explained what his corporate professional connection had been, and the president, as between Doyle and Taylor, also an able man, preferred Taylor and appointed him, not, as I recollect it, for any reason discreditable to Doyle, but because Doyle's many corporate professional associations would make him less acceptable to the public and interfere with his usefulness as a judge."

Senator Foraker's second charge, that Mr. Taft accepted favors from a partner of Judge Doyle and a "magnate in the glass trust" while at Middle Bass Island, Mr. Taft characterizes as ridiculous. He says he was the guest of the Middle Bass club, as Presidents Harrison, McKinley and Cleveland had been.

Hearst Hits Foraker.

Columbus, O.—Senator J. B. Foraker of Ohio was openly charged here by W. R. Hearst with being an agent of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Hearst said that after the oil octopus had been driven from the Republican party by President Roosevelt the Democratic party had welcomed the Standard with open arms and adopted it.

Mr. Hearst read a series of letters from John D. Archbold, the Standard Oil man, to Senator Foraker. In these communications Archbold gave instructions to the senator in regard to what should be done in pending legislative matters, particularly as to bills affecting corporations, and in two of the letters referred to inclosures of certificates of deposit, one for $15,000 and another for $14,500.

Further Charges by Hearst.

St. Louis.—William Randolph Hearst went after Senator J. B. Foraker here stronger than in his Columbus speech.

Mr. Hearst first read a letter in which it was said that a certificate of deposit for $50,000 was inclosed. The letter purported to have been signed by Mr. Foraker and to have been signed by John D. Archbold.

Following this, Mr. Hearst read another letter said to have been signed by Mr. Archbold, in which the Standard Oil man suggested to Mr. Foraker action regarding a bill introduced in the United States senate by the late Senator Jones of Arkansas.

Gen. DuPont Resigns.

New York.—Following many rumors on the subject which were afloat here and in Washington, Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee Friday night announced that Gen. T. Coleman DuPont of Delaware, head of the bureau of campaign speakers of the national committee, had resigned as head of that bureau and also as a member of the executive committee of the national committee and that his resignation had been accepted.

Dog Brought His Friend.

An English lady, who had been from home some time, was recently greeted on her return by the old sheep dog with great delight. So pleased was the animal that he at once went off to a farm seven miles away to summon another dog—an old chum—to come and see his old mistress. This dog was blind, and, after the introduction, was taken back safely by its canine friend.

"A few days ago I sold a customer who was in a very bad fix and when I recommended it he said he would buy it if I would promise to give him back the money if it did not give satisfaction."

"I told him to come right ahead and I would surely give him back the money. I saw him about a week later, skin was a better color, able to work and didn't want his money either."

"Mr. J. B. Pitts, a customer of mine, won't use anything else for Malarial diseases."

Why Didn't She?

A little boy of five years, playing with his sister one day, leaned too far out of the second-story window, lost his balance and fell into the yard below. Very miraculously he escaped being injured, and his parents and friends were so delighted that they gave him quite a number of pennies, nickels and dimes.

The next day, after he recovered from the shock of the fall, he was counting his money, and on seeing his little sister enter the room, exclaimed: "Gee, Gladys, look at all the money I got for falling out of the window! Why don't you try it?"—The Delineator.

Negro Shot White Man.

Rube Kates, of Slough Landing, was here Monday on the lookout for a negro who shot Joe Wright, son of Dr. Wright, last Friday night. After the shooting, the negro made good his escape and has not yet been caught.

Young Wright was hurried to a hospital at Memphis, but the physicians are of the opinion he will not survive. He was in a sitting position when the negro shot, and the bullet entered his right side, just below the ribs, and came out through his left hip.

It is said the trouble was the outcome of a crap game.

She Did Not Fear Death.

An old lady on her seventy-third birthday once said, "I do not mind getting old, and I do not fear death but I live in constant dread of paralysis."

"For some time I have been wanting to tell you of the great good your Wonderful Sloan's Liniment is doing here," writes Mr. James F. Abernethy, of Rutherford College, N. C. "In fact, all your remedies are doing noble work, but your Liniment beats all. In my eight years' experience with medicine I find none to go ahead of it, having tried it in very many cases. I know of one young man, a brick mason, who suffered from a partial, yes, almost complete, paralysis of one arm. I got him to use your Liniment, and now he can do as much work as ever, and he sings your praise every day. I get all to use it I possibly can and know there is great virtue in it. I have helped the sale of your noble remedies about here greatly, and expect to cause many more to buy them, as I know they can't be beat."

Lid Was Off Saturday.

It was noticeable that there were more drunk men in town Saturday than probably any one day since the saloons were closed. Whether the "fire-water" was shipped in or bootlegged, we do not know, but the matter ought to be looked after. It is hinted by some that there is a few "wet" spots on Clinton street, and that a piece of money will tilt the lid.

The Mystery of Migration.

The birds are hurrying South and no scientist and no layman knows why. The migration of the birds is just as much of a mystery today as it was when Aristotle watched it and wondered at it.

It has been said that cold weather sends the birds South. It has been July hot for two weeks, and yet the redstarts, the whitethroats, the brown thrashers, the hermit thrushes, the veeries and the rest have been traveling the route for the Gulf of Mexico for days. Most of the swallows and all the night hawks already are in the land that has no water.

The insect eating birds as a matter of life must go South in cold weather to get their food, but why do they come North in the spring and leave the county of "eternal insects" behind them? Why do some seed eating birds stay in the North all through the year while others make the journey South with their insect-eating fellows? No one knows but the birds, and they won't tell.

It is not to understand why the thrush and the wren and the sanderling that have made the journey two or three times should get the habit and be ready to move at the proper barometrical moment, but what is it that tells the young of the year that September is the time for a change of scene?

Some day the mystery of the migration may be solved, but we hope the day is not near, for mystery always holds a charm. In the meantime the birds will go and come and probably won't worry much over man's inability to explain the why and wherefore.

Building New Barn.

A. G. Kimboro let the contract this week to O. B. Mooney for the erection of a new livery barn on the corner of Carroll and Kentucky streets.

The new building will be 45x66 feet, and will be constructed of concrete building blocks and frame work. Work on the barn is in progress.

THE ELEVATED HANDSHAKE.

How It Originated as a Fashion—Empress Josephine's Lace Handkerchiefs.

It appears that some of the present day fashions owe their origin to physical defects. The elevated handshake is one of these, and a Paris contemporary throws an interesting light upon its origin. It appears that a prince, a leader of society in the French capital, had a carbuncle or some such inconvenient and painful growth on his shoulder. Whenever a friend gave him a handshake the operation as far as the prince was concerned was most painful. To prevent this he raised his hand horizontally to his shoulder, and, if we may use the expression, had "the whip hand."

This new method of handshake was the astonishment and admiration of certain persons always on the lookout for the latest in society, who thought that the prince had inaugurated a new fashion which one sees daily in operation in the Strand.

The dainty lace handkerchief which ladies use owes its origin also to the defects of nature. The unhappy Empress Josephine introduced the fashion. She suffered from bad teeth, and living in the time when American dentistry was unknown, she cast about her for some means to hide the defect. The cambric handkerchief with rich lace was the outcome. If the empress wished to laugh or had to open her mouth widely the handkerchief was requisitioned.

Again, yellow lace has its origin in sadness, according to tradition. A lady of distinction had lost her husband by shipwreck or some other cause. She was impressed with the idea that he would return and vowed to continue wearing until he was restored to her the lace which adorned her dress when she said farewell. Like Josephine's handkerchief, her intimates thought her soiled lace was an innovation in fashion and adopted means to copy it.

EGYPTIAN GOLD MINING.

An Egyptian mining center—probably worked as early as 2500 B. C.—was in the eastern desert, between the Red sea and the Nile. The lately discovered remains described by C. J. Alford include small irregular stone huts, arranged in groups of two or three, to towns large enough for 1,000 men. The ancient workings are buried in sand. The only vestiges of mining appliances are elliptical rubbing stones for coarse crushing and quartz mills for reducing the rock to fine powder, ready for washing out the gold.

The KITCHEN CABINET

INDIVIDUAL HASH.

COURSE it's not correct, but your husband may object if you're giving him of hash a steady diet. You'll find this recipe, if you read it carefully. Will help the situation if you'll try it.

Mince scraps of meat quite fine, a patty-pan then line. With pastry very delicate and thin. Then, if you've saved some stock, from beef or mutton hock, Add this before you put the mixture in.

Add mashed potatoes "riced," or cut up fine and diced.

And bake until it turns a tender brown. Garnish and serve quite hot, the folks will say: "There's not another dish of hash like this in town!"

Preserved Peaches. Put the peaches in boiling water for a few minutes so the skin will come off easily. Make a syrup of a half-pound of sugar and half cup of water for each pound of the fruit. Boil until tender, but no longer, as they will then become mushy. Fill the jars with the hot fruit. Remove the syrup from fire, and add a gill of brandy to each pound of peaches. Pour over the fruit and seal the cans tight. These will keep well as the brandy helps to preserve them.

Fried Salt Pork.

This is a way to prepare ordinary salt pork so it will taste nearly as good as the finest bacon: Cut in thin slices and let it lie in cold water an hour or two. (This will freshen it and remove some salt.) Roll in flour and let fry till crisp. Drain most of the grease from the pan and stir into the remainder one tablespoon flour, one cup sweet milk, and a little pepper. When it thickens and cooks sufficiently, pour over the hot pork. Serve with parsley.

The Crumb Cloth.

The old-fashioned idea of the crumb cloth is an excellent one and it is a pity that we of the present day have abandoned it. The crumb cloth was of some cheap damask or linen like the heavier table linen or toweling. They were perhaps, a square foot larger than the table, and were placed under it, and over the rug. After each meal the ends were lifted and the crumbs shaken to the center where they were out of danger of being trodden into the rug. There they could be gathered up at leisure.

Night Rider Trial Over.

The verdict in the night rider cases, on trial at Union City, Saturday declared three of the defendants not guilty and a hung jury resulted from the trial of the others.

The men on trial were Murray Lassiter, Pete Branham, Jack Hopper, Rufe James, Lesley Barpole Smith Branham, Ed James and R. George. There was not sufficient evidence to warrant the jury finding Gardner, Hopper and Barpole guilty and a verdict of "not guilty" returned. The jury disagreed as to the guilt of the other defendants and a mistrial was ordered.

The crime for which the men were charged is as follows: On April eight men went to the home of J. W. Rook near Reelfoot Lake. They took Mr. Rook from his bed, bound his hands behind his back, bound his feet together, then laid him across a log and gave him fifteen lashes. They then allowed him to go home, but warned him to keep his tongue quiet.
